Attractions along the Route

Cullingworth, a village approximately 5 miles away from Bradford in the rural Pennines known as Bronte Country, lies at an intersection of the Pennine Bridleway and the National Cycle Network.

The opening of the first section of The Great Northern Trail creates an attractive circular 3 mile walk, cycle or horse ride, passing the waterfalls of Goit Stock Wood and over the magnificent railway viaducts of Cullingworth and Hewenden.

The map also shows other recommended routes and connections for cyclists and horse riders to other local attractions and part of the proposed route of The Great Northern Trail towards Halifax.

Cullingworth Viaduct

'Cullingworth Viaduct was commenced in February 1881 and completed in April 1882. It is a splended sample of good stone and excellent workmanship, it's total length being 150 yards. The arch at the south end is forty feet span with a side of only four feet six inches, the centre one has a side of 18 feet and spans forty four feet eight inches wide.'

Taken from the book presented to Chief Engineer Isaac Woodiwiss on completion of the Cullingworth Viaduct in 1884, by the workmen and staff of the Bradford, Halifax, Thornton and Keighley Railway.'

The National Cycle Network is a comprehensive network of safe and attractive routes to cycle throughout the UK. 10,000 miles will be completed by the end of 2005, one third traffic-free, the rest will follow quiet lanes or traffic-calmed roads. It is co-ordinated by Sustrans, the UK's leading sustainable transport charity, and other partners such as local authorities.
